

So in this picture I used my durag as the center point of the scene. Everyone has a durag including me and we all have different colors. I used the Hue/Saturation effect on the different durags, then I used the blur filter on the blue durag's shadow. I did this because the light was coming from behind the group of individuals. So I added the shadow to make it a bit more realistic.